MAY OVERLOOK BILLS ON CONSERVATION THIS SESSION

MANN TO STAND SPONSOR

Friends of Taft's Pet "Legislation" at Work Preparing Harmonious Amendments.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The ambition of Representative Townsend of Michigan to assume charge of the administration railroad bill on the floor of the House will not be gratified, the honor going to Chairman Mann of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. This fact developed today and supporters of the bill in the form in which it was originally introduced by Representative Townsend as it now is pending in the Senate are greatly disappointed.

It has been thought the intense opposition of Mr. Mann to certain features of the bill as drafted by Attorney General Wickersham would make him disinclined to champion it. His success in incorporating many of his own ideas into the measure, however, made Mr. Mann willing to assume the sponsorship. As amended by the committee all Republican members voted for it and there was no way in which the chairman could be denied the management of the measure on the floor. Mr. Mann was particularly opposed to the provision for the creation of a court of commerce and this was retained only through personal efforts of the President.

Whether Mr. Mann will seek to eliminate this provision of the bill on the floor is not known. He is said to be as strongly opposed to it as ever, but his objections are confined to the belief that the establishment of the new court involves unnecessary expense.

In view of the fact that President Taft is so firmly in favor of the court, it is not thought Mr. Mann will make any move for its elimination from the bill.

The administration is looking to the Senate to save the principal features of the original bill. Supporting the President in this matter are Senators Elkins, Aldrich, Kean, Crane, Cullom and Nixon, of the committee on interstate commerce, as well as many other Republican leaders. Vigorous assaults upon the measure have been made by Senators Cummins and Clapp and it is known they will have the support of many other insurgent Republicans as well as of many Democrats.

Formulating Amendments.

That the coalition of insurgent Republicans and Democrats is formidable is admitted by friends of the bill and they are now giving their attention to the formulation of amendments which they hope will harmonize some of the differences. Mr. Wickersham has met with friends of the bill on several occasions and has given them his assistance in framing amendments.

At one time it was planned to have these amendments drafted and then presented by Chairman Elkins. That plan has been abandoned and it is now expected that the amendments will be parceled out among other senators, so that a number may share the credit of making the new law. This scheme even includes acceptance of one or two amendments favored by insurgents.

Not the slightest consideration is being given by the Senate to the attitude of the House on the bill. The chances are that when a conference is held the two measures as passed will resemble each other very little. That being the case, the act will have to be made in conference. It is clear that the Senate conferees will be strengthened by the influence of the White House.

More force is being exerted by Senate leaders to carry out President Taft's views on the railroad bill than in any other administration measure. It would surprise no one if conservation measures should go over until another session. It is also certain there is a hard road ahead of the statehood bill, although Democratic senators give some indications of demanding an agreement that a vote be had on the

DENIES REPORT

Servian Minister Says Queen Prince and Brother Are Not Seeking American Brides.

PARIS, Friday, March 25.—Dr. M. R. Vesnitch, the Servian minister here, has given categorical denial of the reports that Crown Prince Alexander and his elder brother, Prince George, are about to visit America in search of rich American brides.

Mr. Vesnitch says the royal family at Belgrade is greatly annoyed over the report, and that as a matter of fact Prince is known as "Count Paliteh. Mysky Tchaya," who is reported to be in America as the patriarch's agent of King Peter. "Should either of the Servian princes at any future time go to America," said Mr. Vesnitch, "it will be ... the country, and fully ... which ...

KANSAS IS BETTER FOR PROHIBITION

GOVERNOR STUBBS TALKS TO CHICAGO MEN.

Chief Executive of Jayhawker State Offers to Prove His Many Assertions.

CHICAGO, March 27.—Governor Walter R. Stubbs of Kansas, in a speech here today, "put his foot on the necks" of those who maintain that absolute prohibition would bring commercial ruin to a community. He cited the experience of Kansas City as showing how statewide prohibition precluded "race suicide" and encouraged savings banks accounts.

"Prohibition in Kansas is not a result of atmospheric conditions," said Governor Stubbs. "The climate had nothing to do with it. Reason was at the bottom of it all. As a result Kansas people today are better fed, better clothed, have finer homes, larger families and bigger bank accounts.

"The cry of antiprohibitionists that wiping out saloons would bring business stagnation has been utterly refuted. I have proof by which, figuratively speaking, I think I have my foot on the necks of those who circulate antiprohibition talk.

"It was said three years ago that the wiping out of Wichita's saloons would ruin the town. Today, with no saloons, that town has doubled its population, more than doubled its bank account, has better people, less crime, more schools and more intelligence. I have just received letters and telegrams from the mayors of 20 cities and towns, from 29 district judges, and from chiefs of police, and they all agree that the day state statewide prohibition went into effect in Kansas, was the brightest day in that state's history."

PLEASURE SEEKERS HURT AS STREET CARS COLLIDE

KANSAS CITY, March 27.—Eight persons were injured, one dangerously, in a rearend collision between two crowded street cars on the Swope parkway line this afternoon. The cars were filled with pleasure seekers, on their way to Swope park.

The accident occurred at the bottom of a long hill. One car had just begun moving after making a stop at the bottom of the hill, when a second car, which was beyond control of its motorman, crashed into it. Most of the injured were in the front vestibule of the runaway car and on the rear platform of the first car. Many of the victims were taken to their homes in automobiles.

WILL DECIDE ALLDS-CONGER CASE TUESDAY

Whatever the Result New York Legislature Will Probably Demand One Resignation.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 27.—The 49 members of the New York state senate, who comprise the jury in the Allds-Conger bribery case, will vote Tuesday on the question of whether Senator Conger has succeeded in making good his charge that Senator Allds, while majority leader of the assembly in 1901, demanded, received and accepted $1,000 for influencing highway legislation. What the verdict will be no one knows. Corridor gossip has been busy with speculation and predictions have been freely offered but these forecasts have been mere guesswork.

Should the verdict be against Allds, he will be given an opportunity to resign, otherwise a motion will probably be made to expel him. If the senate decides that Conger has not proved his case, and his resignation is not forthcoming, a motion to expel him probably will be made.

Senator Allds declared before the investigation began that if the charges were true there were "two senators unfit in the senate." If untrue," then one is unfit."

It is true, there is reason to believe that if the charges are sustained and Allds resigns or is expelled an effort will be made to expel Conger if he does not resign.

With the Allds case out of the way, the question of a broader investigation of alleged corruption will have to be settled.

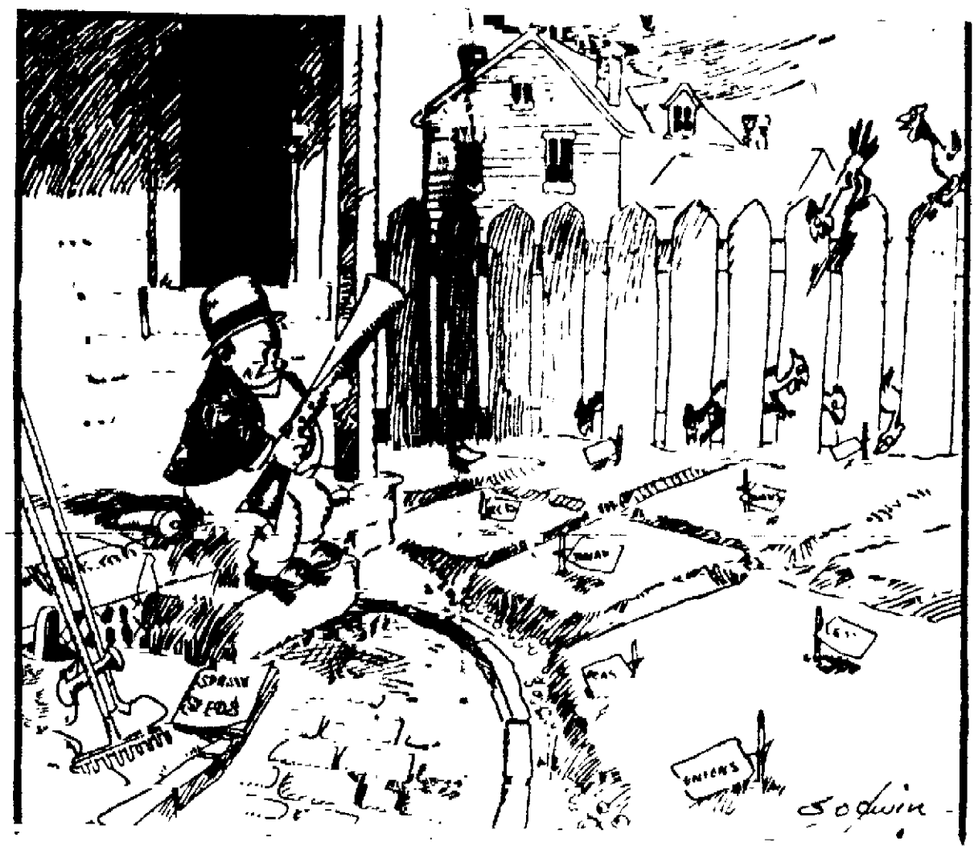
PLEASED WITH RESULT

News of Tariff Agreement Well Received in Government Circles at Ottawa, Ont.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 27.—The news of the tariff agreement at Washington was received in government circles here with satisfaction. It is understood that the dispatches sent from Washington credit Mr. Fielding with having made rather more extensive concessions than have been given. When the official announcement is made it will be found that the list of items on which Canada will make tariff reductions will not include half of the French treaty list.

The net result of the negotiations will be that the Canadian tariff will be slightly reduced on a small number of articles, and that Canada will get the benefit of the United States general tariff.

CONSERVATION POLICY OF THE HOUR



FATALITY REPORTED

8 Men Said to Have Met Death When Gun Exploded on U. S. Cruiser Charleston.

MANILA, March 26.—A report reached here today that a gun on the United States cruiser Charleston exploded during target practice and that eight men were killed or wounded. The Charleston is returning to Manila from Olongapo. No details of the reported accident have been reported here.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Officials of the navy department up to midnight had received no word of the accident on board the cruiser Charleston in which eight men were reported either to have been killed or injured by the bursting of a gun. Rear Admiral N. E. Mason, chief of ordinance believes if the report is confirmed, that it will be found that the damage was done in one of the six-inch turrets. Steps have been taken by the department to learn the extent of the accident. The United States cruiser Charleston is the flagship of Rear Admiral John Hubbard, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet. Her commanding officer is Commander John H. Gibbons.

The Charleston is a protected cruiser of 9,700 tons and carries 14 guns in the main battery.

MORMON LEADER DIES

John R. Winder's Position in Church Next to That of Pres. Smith. Other Deaths.

SALT LAKE CITY, March 27.—John R. Winder whose position in the Mormon church was second only to that of President Joseph F. Smith, died today from pneumonia. Since the accession of President Smith as head of the church Mr. Winder has been first councilor of the presidency. He was 88 years of age. In the early days of Utah, when plural marriage was a recognized practice, Mr. Winder was married to a second wife, who died many years ago. He is survived by 16 children, 87 grandchildren, and a number of great-grandchildren.

FARMINGTON, Utah., March 27.—Eugene Day, a newspaper man well known in the west committed suicide by shooting this morning. Day worked in Denver, Los Angeles and several Idaho towns during his journalistic career. His divorced wife and daughter live in Los Angeles. Despondency is the only explanation offered for his self-destruction.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 27.—William P. Cooper, grand chancellor of the Utah Knights of Pythias, died today from diabetes. He was 46 years of age. He had held high offices in the Elks.

NORFOLK, Va., March 27.—Gen. W. P. Roberts, who bore the distinction of being the youngest brigadier general in the Confederate army, died today as the result of a fractured hip. General Roberts, who was 80 years of age, commanded a brigade in the southern army when he was 23 years old.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Dudley Evans, president of Wells, Fargo and company since 1908, died in a hospital here tonight following an operation last Monday for gall stones. He was 73 years old.

At the outbreak of the Civil war he fought with the Confederacy as a lieutenant colonel of the Twentieth Virginia cavalry, and from 1871 to 1878 was a member of the Virginia legislature. His home was at Engleswood, N. J.

BERKELEY, Cal., March 27.—Mrs. Beulah Stubbs, former wife of John Sunderland, Democratic national committeeman from Nevada, and daughter of J. C. Stubbs, traffic director of the Harriman system, died suddenly here last night.

TOWN DESTROYED BY FIRE

ALGERT, La., March 27.—The business section of Vidor was practically wiped out by fire today. Thirty buildings, including a hotel, a bank and a number of stores, were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $150,000. The fire started in a restaurant and spread rapidly.

SUSPECT SMILES AS SHE READS DETAILS

GIRL IN NEW YORK MURDER MYSTERY FOUND.

Youth Dies Burning Ruth Wheeler's Body, Despite Strong Circumstantial Evidence.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Albert Wolter, the youth in the fireplace of whose rooms were found yesterday portions of the burnt body of Ruth Wheeler, the young stenographer who had been missing since last Thursday morning, was committed to the Tombs without bail today charged with the girl's murder.

At a continuation of the police quiz to which he was subjected last night he persisted in his denials that he had ever seen the girl, ever had written to her, or knew how her body came to be on the fire escape outside his window, or why fragments of human feet, hands and arms were found in the ashes of his fireplace.

Katie Miller, or Katchen Maellier, the girl with whom he lived, was arrested today as she approached the house where the murder was committed. She was reading details in a German newspaper as she walked, smiling as she read. During a long cross-examination she held sturdily to the consistent story that she knew nothing of the crime until she read of it in the newspapers.

On Thursday night when she returned from work at the laundry where she earned $6 a week and gave it all to Wolter—she said she noticed that the stove in front of the fire place had been moved, the fireboard newly painted and a colored lithograph pasted over the hole where the stove pipe formerly entered. When she asked Wolter why he had done this, he answered that summer was coming and they would not need the stove.

Paramour Jealous.

She had not even known that Wolter had received a visitor, she says, until Pearl Wheeler, the dead girl's elder sister, had called on Friday morning to ask if Ruth had been there. Wolter had denied it, but the Miller girl says she was uneasy after the interview and that she became jealous and accused him of harboring another woman in the flat. Again he denied it. Friday morning she went to work again, and that afternoon Wolter was arrested. The girl was committed to the house of detention as a material witness.

An autopsy today showed that Ruth Wheeler had been killed in the manner indicated by the first superficial examination. First she had been strangled with a rope and then the bones of the arms and legs were broken to admit the body more rapidly to the narrow throat of the chimney. Why the cuts were made on the body does not appear.

When she was shown the nightshirt in which part of the charred body had been wrapped, the sister positively identified the garment as Wolter's.

"That letter 'W,'" said the girl, indicating an initial sewed on the shirt, "was embroidered by Albert's mother."

Also she identified a comforter in which the head and trunk had been wrapped as having been given by her and Wolter to hold bedding.

LAVA FLOW OBSTRUCTED

Authorities Fear Earthquake Unless Another Passage on Mt. Etna Is Forced.

CATANIA, March 27.—While the quantity of lava from the craters of Mount Etna continues to decrease, the internal activity of the volcano was stronger today than yesterday.

Frank A. Perrett, the American authority, believes the decrease in the flow of lava is due to obstructions in the new craters which prevent its flowing freely and that in a few days the molten mass either will force a passage or an earthquake will result.

Mr. Perrett went today from Nicolosi to the Alpine club refuge, which is near the craters, and later telegraphed down as follows.

"The activity of Etna today is stronger, but the lava is slower. Terrific explosions in the interio, of the mountain continue."

NEW FISSURES OPEN ON MT. VESUVIUS

NAPLES, March 27.—Five large new fissures have opened near the central crater of Mount Vesuvius, but the volcano shows no great activity.

TO SAFEGUARD FLYING

Proposed Measure by Aero Club of France Also Provides Protection for Property Owners.

PARIS, Friday, March 18.—Rules and regulations controlling navigation of the air have been formulated by the Aero club of France and have been submitted to the French government as the basis for a national law.

The code, elaborated after much study, aims to meet the rights and interests of all—of the aeroplanist and balloonist flying through space and of man and woman's property on the earth below.

Following are some of the club's suggestions:

Aerial craft, whether aeroplane or dirigible balloon, must not circulate lower than 150 feet over private property.

Flying above cities requires a permit from the municipalities.

Flying in fog is not allowed, and the transportation of explosives, except hunting ammunition, is prohibited.

The fixation of general aerial routes is recommended as a way of avoiding collisions and aeroplanes and dirigible balloons should keep off a certain distance from spherical balloons, so that if accidents happen to the dirigible machines the spherical may not be endangered.

For the protection of the aeronaut it is recommended proprietors of high buildings and other structures be required to illuminate their property at night at each level of 250 feet, while all electric wires strung above 150 feet from the ground should be marked each 600 feet with a white flag by day and a white light by night. Other suggestions relate to the establishment of aerial "ports of access" to large cities.

The project is now being studied by Mr. Miller and the minister of public works.

ROOSEVELT TALKS TO NATURE EDITORS

NATIVES FILL CHURCH TO SEE AMERICAN.

Hotel Management to Mark Spot Where He Stood, With Brass Tablet.

CAIRO, March 27.—Colonel Roosevelt and his family today attended the morning Easter services at the English church, which was crowded. Later they gave a small private luncheon in Shephard's restaurant and afterward Colonel Roosevelt received informally a deputation of Copts and Mohammedans and leading Egyptian journalists.

Colonel Roosevelt discussed religious intolerance and other nonpolitical subjects with his guests, while they were served with coffee and cigarettes.

Every one is awaiting anxiously the speech of Colonel Roosevelt at the university tomorrow. His discourse, it is thought, will prove an important one. The assassination last month of Boutros Pacha Ghali, premier and minister of foreign affairs, by a student, is expected to be alluded to in the address.

After the dinner and reception at the American agency Saturday night, Colonel Roosevelt returned to Shephard's hotel, where a largely attended Venetian fete and dance was in progress. Colonel Roosevelt, however, went immediately to his suite to obtain a much needed rest after a strenuous day.

In a conversation between an educated Egyptian and the correspondent of the Associated Press today the Egyptian declared Colonel Roosevelt learned more about the Assout American mission in two days than Lord Cromer had learned in 25 years. This is typical of the impression Egyptians have formed of Colonel Roosevelt's wonderful power in absorbing details of all subjects.

The director of Shephard's hotel intends to place a brass tablet to mark the spot where Colonel Roosevelt stood in the garden of the hotel yesterday and shook hands with some hundred Americans.

Colonel Roosevelt has invited Prince and Princess Eitel Frederick of Germany to take tea with him Tuesday.

In view of the fact that several newspapers of the young Egypt party attacked Colonel Roosevelt on account of his speeches at Khartum, in which he emphasized benefits of British rule in the Sudan, Colonel Roosevelt expressed the wish to have a heart to [illegible]. This was arranged for this afternoon and was a picturesque affair.

Some of the Egyptians were in native costume. One dignified Arab sheikh, in robes and turban, proved extremely voluble in his native tongue. Dr. Nimr, editor of the Mokattan, acted as translator and spokesman.

Colonel Roosevelt after listening attentively to the remarks of the natives, addressed the editors on the power and the responsibility of the press and the necessity for using it to good ends. The interview closed with mutual compliments, the editors appearing greatly pleased with Colonel Roosevelt's bearing.

LABOR DECLARES FOR LOCAL OPTION LAW

Thinks Its Adoption Will Hasten Settlement of Carmen's Trouble. Sympathizers Back to Work.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—Declaring that the passage of a local option law would hasten the settlement of the trouble between the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company and its employes, the Central Labor union, at its meeting today, adopted resolutions calling upon the members of the trades unions of the city to agitate and vote for local option at every opportunity.

The failure of the brewery workers to join in the sympathetic strike, it is alleged was practically responsible for the passage of this resolution. The aye and nay vote on a motion to table the resolution was 36 to 33.

The general strike in sympathy with the striking street car men, which has been in effect for more than three weeks, was officially called off at today's meeting. A majority of the workers who had responded to the call have already returned to work.

The committee of ten which has charge of the sympathetic strike made its report today, and recommended that the strike be discontinued and financial support be given to the car men.

MORAL REFORM WAVE SWAYS PITTSBURG CITIZENS

TO INVESTIGATE BANKS

PITTSBURG, March 27.—The Lenten season, which ended today has been too short a season of penitence for Pittsburg and it will be continued with promise of even more startling confessions of graft this week.

In several hundred churches today an unusual feature of the Easter services was the reading of a circular letter issued by a civic committee yesterday urging the members of every congregation to attend a huge indignation mass meeting to be held some day this week. Sermons, too, were directed to arouse public condemnation of such practices as have been revealed. Lessons in civic cleanliness were drawn by many pastors.

It having been pretty well established, according to District Attorney Wm. A. Blakely, that at least $1,000,000 was used in influencing legislation, the source of the money and the dispensers of it are to be the focus of the grand jury's attention tomorrow.

A considerable portion of the bribe fund is charged to big banks that sought to get city deposits. They succeeded, but it is the desire of the grand jury as pronounced in its report of Friday last, that the bank deposit ordinance be rescinded and the banks, if found guilty, be deprived of the use of city money. It is known that some representatives of the banks are to be called tomorrow to testify. The six banks that have been named by the grand jury as involved in the scandal are the Columbia National, the German National of Pittsburg, the Farmers National Deposit bank, the Second National, the German National bank of Allegheny, and the Workingmen's Savings and Trust company.

Moral Reform Demanded.

The directorate of the Farmers National has announced that it will comply with the district attorney's call for information and the Second National has prepared a certified statement which is to be presented to the grand jury tomorrow. The other banks have taken no action.

It was learned tonight that Charles Stewart in his talk with the district attorney, told all he is said to know about the men higher up. Stewart is a former select councilman who was declared by the grand jury in its presentment Saturday to have been the man to whom $45,000 of bribe tainted money was given at the Hotel Imperial in New York.

The city's councils meet tonight. Twenty of the present [illegible] of the councils are under indictment in connection with the graft cases. It is [illegible] that they will protest their innocence but the majority are expected to hand in resignations.

While the big show continues, there is a lively side feature in a crusade against all varieties of graft and wrongdoing in Pittsburg. Disorderly houses are being closed up and every night lately has seen a roundup of women in the tenderloin district.

At a meeting of citizens in the Fort Pitt hotel, at which a committee was formed to further the moral reform plan, it was openly charged the graft collected in the redlight district amounted to a million dollars a year.

John F. Kirk, whose conviction and exposure of others has created a sensation, has been arrested and is now kept in a room at the Fort Pitt hotel pending disposition of his case. He is under [illegible] of three and a [illegible] police [illegible] him. The authorities have [illegible] him to [illegible] out [illegible] public [illegible].

STARS NOT WANTED IN THIS THEATER

COMEDIE FRANCAISE UNIQUE IN OTHER WAYS.

Founded by Royal Institution of Louis XIV to Survive the Revolution

By Arid ria J. Westi

"If Louis XIV and Napoleon had not lived and the Comedie Francaise had not been created by royal decree, there would not be much of historical interest in France," remarked an American tourist a short time ago upon his return from France.

While the generalization is extravagant it is a fact that the names of these two great rulers and of this powerful dramatic organization are more closely associated in the public mind with the French nation than any other array of personages or group of institutions.

The Comedie Francaise occupies a place of preeminence in the world of dramatic art, and has maintained the position almost since its creation by Louis XIV when he decreed that the three rival theatrical organizations the King's company, Moliere's, the company of the Marais theater and the Royal company should combine in 1680. It is practically the only royal institution of France which survived the Revolution. Napoleon gave it a new home and revived it by his decree from Moscow in 1812. Its handsome theater, a treasure house of records, was burned in 1900 but was rebuilt with a government appropriation.

It is governed in a most peculiar manner. In fact no one seems to know exactly what its code is. Its laws are rather a common law which have grown out of tradition. When a promising young student gradutes from the Conservatory, the national training school for actors, he may be employed at a daily salary to play minor roles. After he has been in the employ of the theater for several years, shows aptitude and there is finally a vacancy either through death or retirement, he is elected one of the "associates." As an associate he shares in the annual profits of the institution, which are sometimes considerable as the institution receives an annual subsidy of 60,000 francs from the government, and in addition receives the theater free of rent and taxes. One of the best features of the organization is that actors cast for minor parts do not quit in disgust. They know that while they may be playing the parts of maids and menservants today, tomorrow they may be cast for principal roles, as one play is seldom given more than two days in succession and three days a week for the same play is the limit. By this means of rotating the actors and actresses the ensemble excellence of the casts is made easily the finest in the world. One reason why actors do not complain of appearing in minor roles is that they are given a small extra stipend for every performance in which they take part. There is no laziness or "tempermental" illness there. When an actor has grown too old to do capable work he is retired on a pension. In the division of the annual profits the actors are ranked according to length of service.

Antipathy to Stars.

One of the features of the Comedie Francaise which strikes Americans most forcibly is its uncompromising attitude in opposition to the "starring" system which is such an integral part of the stage in both England and America. And this antipathy to "stars" is well founded at the Comedie for its one experience in that direction was fraught with much artistic and financial distress. The single exception was the great Rachel who packed the theaters to the doors every night that she appeared, bringing into the box office 10,000 francs upon each appearance all of which went into her own pockets. On the nights which the star did not appear, however, the theater was practically empty. On one occasion it is recorded that "Tartufe" and "Legacy," the two masterpieces of Moliere and Marivaux, were produced without the star and the receipts were 67 francs or $13.40. But Rachel had been elevated to the position of a star because in the opinion of her associates she was the greatest actress in the history of the world. One critic, Mr. Lewes, described her thus: "Rachel was the panther of the stage; with a panther's terrible beauty and undulating grace she moved and stood, glared and sprang."

It is generally known that the honor of discovering this great artiste belongs to an American. When Edwin Forrest was in Europe in 1834 and 1835 he was asked by the manager of a Paris theater to give his opinion of an actor of whom the manager expected much. At the conclusion of the performance Forrest said he thought the man only mediocre, but he added "but that Jewish-looking girl that little bag of bones, with the marble face and the flaming eyes there is demoniacal power in her. If she lives and does not burn out too soon, she will become something wonderful." And it was not long before the "bag of bones" arrived but there was lots of work before she reached the top. M. Legouve, the author of, "Adrienne Lecouvreur," relates that on one occasion she worked with him, for three hours over the reading of a single line in "Louise de Lignerolles."

Some Famous Players.

Another of the greatest names associated with the Comedie Francaise was Mlle Mars, who unfortunately for her sensibilities tried to return too long as the mistress of her art. She continued to appear in the roles of ingenues long after she had passed the half century mark and one night a heartless brute threw a wreath of immortelles upon the stage at her feet, and shortly after this incident she was pensioned and had to come before the footlights to make this pathetic anonymous announcement. Mlle. Marsy (a part in the play) is only sixteen years old. Mlle. Mars, alas! is sixty."

Next to Mlle Mars and Rachel the Comedie gave to the French people that wonderful commedienne Mlle Arnould-Plessy of whom the following story is told. Mme. Plessy, having used every possible favor in order to get it, strived to win new laurels as a tragedienne and so she created the role of Agrippina in Racine's "Britannicus." At that time Francisque Sarcey, the greatest dramatic critic of France, was living and in his review a few days later he wrote: "I shall not say that Mme. Plessy is mediocre. With her intelligence, with her natural gifts, with her immense authority over the public, she could not in any way be mediocre. She is not, therefore, mediocrely bad. She is bad to an inexpressible degree." A few days later he was calling at a friend's house and seeing Mme Plessy in the drawing room he tried to hide behind a palm, but she came straight toward him and holding out her hand said: "You are right, you might have told the truth more amiably but it was the truth. I shall not again risk myself in a tragic part. I thank you." And with a bow she walked away leaving Sarcey stupefied.

All celebrities of the Comedie have not received adverse criticism with such good grace, however, as witness the case of M. Got, the immediate predecessor of the lamented Coquelin as the head of the national company. Got's first appearance as a member of the company was a pitiful failure and two days later he read a scathing criticism by Charles Maurice, a clever free lancer, who if he were living today would be termed a press agent of the most virulent type. On the night after Got read the article he met Maurice and the latter said "Well, young man why have you not been to see me? In France it is customary for an artist to call on a writer to thank him for kindly criticism." Got, with the sting of the review still rankling in his breast replied "The fact is, sir I am poor and I have no money to pay the claque." The journalist never forgave the actor. He was ever after that Got's bitterest enemy.

Bernhardt's Experience.

Another "bag of bones with a Jewish look" who has added luster to the Comedie is the incomparable Sarah Bernhardt, whose final enrolment under the banner of the institution was accomplished only after great difficulty. Even the youthful Sarah's education was gained only after many trials, for she was expelled four times from a convent. When she had finished the prescribed course, capturing many prizes she was undecided whether she wanted to be a nun or an actress. She finally decided on the latter profession and entered the conservatory, being engaged at the Theater Francaise in due time, but she was of such an obstreperous disposition that she had to leave after having slapped the face of one of the principal players. She became quite an eccentric personality and acquired a large following in the less important theaters of Paris. She early showed a remarkable genius for the press agency and of her art and she was the most talked-of woman in Paris even before she was re-engaged at the Comedie where she won distinction in spite of the fact that all the older members were antagonistic to her. She was aided in her fight for pre-eminence by the fact that she had an extremely thin figure, while her chief adversary was inclined toward embonpoint, which precluded the effective enactment of poetic roles.

The last of the really great figures of the Comedie Francaise died only a short time ago at the moment when he hoped to achieve his greatest triumph in the title role of Edmond Rostand's latest play, Chantecler—Coquelin, aine. Coquelin's engagement at the Comedie was attended with an unusual incident. After graduating at the Conservatory with first honor he was assigned a part in a new play, but his joy was of short duration for it was soon taken away from him and given to the son of an old actor. To console the young Coquelin the manager offered him the privilege of choosing any part he wished and he selected the valet Figaro in "Marriage of Figaro." It is said that during the first four acts he was so frightened he played most stupidly but in the last act having regained his nerve, he achieved such a notable triumph that he was for many years cast for all the important valet parts in Moliere's great comedies in which serving men have the center of the stage.

CONFESSES MURDER

Baltimore Youth Claims Killing of Salt Lake Man He Held Up Was Accidental

SALT LAKE CITY, March 27.—Harry Thorn today confessed to the murder of George W. Fawsell an east side grocer during a holdup last night. Thorn who is from Baltimore and claims to be only 18 years old named John Hays and a man called "Curly" as his associates in the robbery. Hays also admitted his complicity.

"I thought he was getting ready to do something," said Thorn "and told him to hold his hands higher. I stuck my gun into his side to scare him and it went off. I did not mean to shoot."

Thorn and Hays were arrested within an hour after the robbery. "Curly" is at large. On their arrival in town a few days ago they had come under observation of George Sheets, chief of detectives. Sheets took the precaution to find out where they were rooming. The description of the robbers, obtained after the murder, while meager was sufficient to connect them in the mind of the detective with the men he had suspected.

A detail of officers walked from the police station to a rooming house half a block away and burst into the room noted in Sheets' memorandum book. They found two men, breathless from fast working, a warm revolver, money corresponding to the sum taken from Fawsell's store, and loot from a recent burglary. The men passed a restless night in the city jail, and told of his crime with little persuasion when questioned today.

STARTS GUESSING CONTEST

Gas and Electric Company Will Award Prizes for Figures on Population.

Some interesting figures have just been secured by the gas and electric company. A house-to-house canvass of Colorado Springs and Colorado City that has been made by the company through H. M. McConnell has brought out the fact that there are now just 8,181 houses in the two cities.

Now that speculation is keen on what the coming government census will show, the figures are of unusual interest. Statisticians vary in their averages of the number of residents of a community per house, but four and five persons are the most general estimates. Following out these theories, the population of the two cities might come to either of the following figures:

Counting four to a family on an average, the population would be four times 8,181 or 32,724.

Counting five to the family, the population would be 40,905.

With the beginning of the census taking, the company has inaugurated a unique contest. Prizes amounting to about $150, and consisting of gas ranges, a gas kitchen and other gas appliances, are to be given to the few who come nearest to the figures that will be announced by the government at the close of the canvass. Only employes of the company and those engaged in compiling the figures for the government will be barred from the contest.

What the Press Agents Say

MATINEE—GRAND OPERA—NIGHT

The opportunities for hearing grand opera in the west are rare indeed. With the exception of the visit of the International Grand Opera company last fall, Colorado Springs has had no opera since the Savage English Opera troupe presented "Madam Butterfly" at the Opera House, two years ago. Consequently, the coming of the Le Brun company of grand opera artists to the Opera House this afternoon and evening is a musical treat of unusual promise.

The organization is headed by Mme. Antoinette Le Brun, who was formerly prima donna for the Savage English Grand Opera and the Italian Grand Opera companies. She is assisted by Mlle. Madeliene Vance, mezzo soprano; Fritz Huttmann, tenor, and Signor Louis La Valle, baritone. The program includes all the principal numbers from Verdi's famous opera, "Il Trovatore," and the entire second act of Flotow's "Martha," which scene contains the vocal gems of the work.

The program in full follows.

"Il Trovatore" ..... Verdi
"The Night, Calmly and Peacefully."
"Lonely on Earth Abiding."
"Deceiver! Those Accents!"
"On Rosy Wings of Love Depart."
"Those Accents! Lady! Thus Near Me?"
"Back to Our Mountains."
"If Filial Love."
"Miserere."
"Thou Wilt Not Speak?"
"Begone Now! Repulse Me Not."
"Martha" ..... Flotow
"This Is Your Future Dwelling."
"Surprised I Am and Astounded."
Spinning Wheel Quartet.
"To His Eye, Mine Kindly Meeting."
"'Tis the Last Rose of Summer."
"Cruel One! May Thy Dreams Trans. Bad They"
"Why in Haste We."
"The Fi[illegible] of the Hea[illegible]"

Good seats may still be secured for both performances at popular prices.

"All's Fair"

Modern life is so strenuous that the playgoer is beginning to find his greatest pleasure in witnessing productions which, like the short story for the reader, give him the essential recreation in the most compact mixture, or else provide the most powerful mental stimulus with the swiftest and most sensible employment of his attention. Time was when one did not think he was getting his money's worth unless the writer or the artist crowded his theme or the stage with "characters" and multiplied plots almost ad infinitum. Nowadays we wish to get quickly to the heart of things, and if the writer has anything to say, we demand that he say it in the [illegible]

Fashions in plays are constantly changing, and the play with the [illegible] in the plot that thrill the [illegible] figure of popularity. A notable [illegible] of the present season is "The Thief," which Charles Frohman will present with a special company headed by Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon at the Opera House Monday April 4.

"The Thief" has only seven characters, and what Henry Bernstein, its author, has accomplished with those seven characters has made other writers for the stage unusually keen on producing small cast plays. But the characters in "The Thief" are few because others would be superfluous. Were they necessary it is safe to say Bernstein would have employed them and in his master hand their presence would be amply justified and amply enjoyed.

"THE GREAT DIVIDE"

Town talk, theatrically considered, is centered upon the coming engagement of Henry Miller's company in "The Great Divide," to the Opera House Saturday, matinee and night. With this notable drama, by William Vaughn Moody, Mr. Miller has reached the zenith of his career as a producing manager. Never has an American play by an American author won such instant recognition at the hands of the most discriminating reviewers.

"The long-awaited 'great American play,'" many critics have termed it. The unquestioned power and intense human appeal of this masterpiece of dramatic literature, as well as the intelligent and highly artistic presentation and production, as directed by the past-master of stage craftmanship, Henry Miller, easily explains the phenomenal vogue this piece has attained. During the two seasons' engagement at the Princess and Daly theaters, and later at the Academy of Music, New York, it was only possible to secure seats by buying them weeks in advance, or procuring them at advanced prices from speculators.

Over a half a million people saw this great play in New York city alone during the 600 performances. "The Great Divide" will be given here by a superb company with all the wealth of scenic equipment and the complete production precisely as presented during the metropolitan engagement.

COMEDY BILL OPENS AT MAJESTIC TODAY

The new Majestic show, opening with today's matinee, promises to be immensely popular owing to its high class comedy features. It is chuck full of good comedy, with four acts answering that description, while in addition there will be a dramatic sketch, the Majestiscope moving pictures and the concert orchestra program.

The comedy acts include Walters and Murray in "The Hired Man," an intensely funny sketch, full of good specialties; Rube and Dorothy Sims, comedy singers, dancers and cartoonists; Eddie Dolan, the Irish impersonator, monologist and dancer, and Nellie Burt, comedienne and character singer. The "heavy" part of the bill consists of the great drama of western frontier life, "The Way of the West," presented by Al W. Fremont and company, Mr. Fremont being supported by Clay Clement and his wife, Mary Frey. This sketch is a melodrama, with a strong plot, well worked out, and in the hands of these three its possibilities are made the most of. It is sure to score a hit.

In fact, the character and personnel of the entire show is such as to assure its high popularity.

BUSONI

The Philharmonic audience at Carnegie hall last night enjoyed the equivalent of what in the opera houses is called an all-star cast. The greatest of living pianists played with a conductor who has no superior anywhere; in other words, Ferruccio Busoni played with Gustav Mahler. The work chosen was Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto. The newspapers of Germany (where this Italian pianist has made his home) have in the last few years contained many accounts of the enthusiasm he arouses in concert halls. Like Paderewski, he has been accused of "hypnotizing" his hearers, as that word alone seemed to hint at an explanation of his magnetic power over them. That power he used last night. He played Beethoven's famous concerto with a splendid clarity of melodic enunciation, a variety of tone color and rhythmic accent, a poetic freedom of movement that were altogether enchanting, causing the audience to recall him five times. It is not customary to grant encores at Philharmonic concerts, but there was no escaping one this time and Mr. Busoni played Chopin's A flat polonaise as no one but Liszt, Rubinstein or Paderewski could have done it, bringing out its superb virility, its clangor and thunder, with thrilling effect.

It was a memorable performance. Klindworth once wrote that Liszt did the most astonishing things with his left thumb, making one think it must be doubly as long as an ordinary thumb. One gets the same impression of Busoni on watching the movements of his left hand across the keyboard, singling out significant notes for rhetorical accentuation.

Ferruccio Busoni, the eminent Italian pianist, made his first appearance before a Buffalo audience at Convention hall last evening, and immediately captured the audience by his fine unaffected manner of playing and his extraordinarily artistic perceptions.

It was not alone his fine technique or his wonderful temperamental intensity that held the listeners spellbound throughout the program, but he also has power, a singing quality of touch and a fine [illegible] of rhythm. Bound in every sense of the word are his readings and his sound intellectual treatment of the great masters' works affords the deepest pleasure to all who enjoy pianoforte playing.

If he played nothing but the Chopin Sonata B-flat minor, that alone would have sufficed to establish his fame as the greatest pianist of his day.

PEARY AND THE PRICE OF FOOD

If the present agitation over the cost of living accomplishes no other result, it should fix on the public mind the fact that the most expensive food in the world is the food that doesn't "make good"—that doesn't digest—that doesn't refresh—that doesn't give you the sweet sleep that belongs to the night time, and that "up and doing" feeling that belongs to the day.

One of the valuable discoveries the Arctic Explorers in their 150 years' struggle for the pole have made, is the science of eating. Only with proper fuel under the boiler can the human machine endure the hardships and physical effort involved in such gigantic undertakings.

No exploration of this kind has been undertaken in the last fifteen years without a supply of Horlick's Malted Milk, either in powder form, from which a delicious nourishing food drink can be made in a moment by stirring in water; or in the Lunch Tablet form, which proved most serviceable on the sledging trips, since a few tablets can be dissolved in the mouth at intervals, and were found to be very efficient in relieving hunger and fatigue. Horlick's Malted Milk containers mark the route to the Pole, and return, not only with Peary, but with Baldwin-Zeigler, the Anglo American, the Wellman and other expeditions.

About 50 grocerymen have arranged to go to Denver next Monday on Colorado and Southern train No. 1, which leaves here at 12:55 p. m., to attend the pure food show. A special rate of $2.25 for the round trip has been placed in effect on Monday and the Colorado and Southern has arranged special equipment to handle the party.

There will be a special communication of Tejon lodge No. 104, A. F. and A. M., tonight at 7:30 o'clock, for work in the entered apprentice degree.

Mr. Stratton has been in the city for about two weeks, having come here to take charge of the telephone system of the city upon the resignation of R. F. Morris, who has become general manager of the Interstate Telephone and Telegraph company, with general offices at El Paso, Tex.

NEGRO WITH RIFLE CAUSES EXCITEMENT

J. H. Childress, Disarmed and Arrested in Front of Church. Attempt to Kill Charged.

Charged with an attempt to kill J. H. Childress a negro was arrested by W. H. Jesse turnkey at the county jail yesterday afternoon and locked up in that institution. The arrest followed an armed demonstration with a rifle by Childress in front of the African Methodist church, corner of Weber and Pueblo streets and caused considerable excitement in that section of the city. The negro will probably be arraigned before a justice of the peace today.

According to the officer and several witnesses, Childress appeared in front of the church while services were being held there, carrying a repeating rifle in his hands. A few minutes later E. V. Campbell, also colored janitor at the court house, came along and it is alleged that Childress raised the rifle and was preparing to fire at the janitor when bystanders disarmed him. Turnkey Bess who saw the affair, placed the disarmed negro under arrest at once. No cause for his action is known but it is said by several who know the men that the trouble is the outgrowth of a family quarrel.

DIES IN KANSAS CITY

George W. Tourtellot, Who Lived Here for a Year, Leaves Big Fortune.

Word was received here last night of the death of George W. Tourtellot in Kansas City last Saturday. Mr. Tourtellot was formerly general superintendent of the Armour Packing company, but some time ago retired from business. He spent nearly a year in Colorado Springs in the hope of regaining his health, and made many friends in this city. He left Colorado Springs for Kansas City only a week ago in company with his son, Dallas T. Tourtellot, who was with him here.

It is said that Mr. Tourtellot leaves an estate valued at about half a million of dollars, and his son, who was popular in the younger set of Colorado Springs, will probably inhert half of the property. The other half, according to Kansas City appears, will go to another son, George W. Tourtellot, a real estate dealer in that city.

Mr. Tourtellot died of heart disease. He was 64 years of age and had led an active life in the financial world. For some time he was a councilman from the Fourth ward in Kansas City. As general superintendent of the Armour Packing company he became a business man of national prominence.

Some time ago he found the condition of his health necessitated his withdrawal from business, and, retiring, he took a trip through the Philippine islands, Japan and Europe. Upon his return he came to Colorado Springs, and, with his son, lived for some time at the Antlers hotel. The death of his wife occurred about a year ago in Boulder.

MAY OVERLOOK BILLS

As to Other Bills.

Appropriation bills are being passed by the Senate about as rapidly as they are received from the House. The spirit of retrenchment which has a firm hold in the Senate committee precludes enlargements of the bills to any extent.

The naval appropriation bill is before the House now and there is in prospect a sharp contest over the question whether there shall be constructed two big battleships, or only one, as the minority of the committee favors. A similar fight will be made in the Senate, where many favor cutting down appropriations for the navy and the army.

The postal savings bank bill is expected to come out of the House committee within a few weeks. There is considerable sentiment in favor of amending it so as to insure keeping of funds in banks in the vicinity where collected.

If the row between the regulars and insurgent Republicans is at an end, as leaders of both factions profess to believe, it would appear that adjournment of Congress may be expected about June 15. There are indications, however, that the fires of the recent contest are smoldering and may break out at any moment.

Considerable talk is heard about eliminating Cannon from the speakership and on Saturday the idea was advanced that Asher C. Hinds, parliamentarian of the House, might be favored for that place.

Democrats are vehement in their declarations that they will carry the next House, and it is not known how they would feel about the selection of a nonmember for the speakership. Neither is it known how Mr. Hinds would feel about giving up his position for an honor that might be comparatively short.

In view of the fate of the Aurelian resolution, which was declared to create a vacancy, members might hesitate to renew such a motion. The whole subject, nevertheless, is attracting attention.

INTIMATES SENSATION

Man Conducting Fire Investigation Has More Evidence to Produce.

NEW YORK, March 27.—The fire insurance investigation today developed sensational scandals involving the expenditure of far greater sums than any named in the Allds-Conger bribery cases will be continued here tomorrow.

"I have only touched the surface thus far," said Superintendent Hotchkiss when the hearings were adjourned today.

Thus far the gold cure of Addison Cammack, the letter files of Edward H. Harriman, the [illegible] of the late George F. Baker, president of the First National bank, and the [illegible] of the Phenix Fire Insurance company of Brooklyn, Sheldon for years was in charge of the legislative interests of the New York companies and his correspondence with his Albany agent, William H. Buckley, was voluminous and precise.

Buckley's own opinion of his ability to smother legislation and to gain advance information of court decisions has been very modest in his testimony but in the letters to Sheldon he put a better estimate on the value of his services. It is expected that his memory will be still further refreshed if he is called tomorrow.

There is also a possibility that Justice Edward McCall of the state supreme court, a brother of the late John A. McCall, president of the New York Life Insurance may volunteer to explain how his name came to be on the back of a $35,000 check issued by the Phenix Fire Insurance company to Buckley's order. According to the exhibit the justice signed Buckley's name and his own under it without indicating that he had power of attorney.

BULGARIA PREPARED

Can Rush Many Trained Troops Against Turkey if It Fails in Diplomatic Negotiations.

PARIS, Friday, March 18.—Another dangerous crisis in the Balkans has been narrowly but perhaps only temporarily avoided, according to well-informed diplomatic circles here, where for months it has been an open secret that Bulgaria was determined to try conclusions with Turkey over the question of Macedonia, either to win the province outright or at least to secure autonomy for the rest of European Turkey.

Bulgaria for years has made tremendous sacrifices to equip and train the model army she now possesses, always with the idea of inevitable war with Turkey. The Bulgarian people have gradually become imbued with the belief that their army is invincible, and the acquisition of their own independence has left them dissatisfied that their Christian brothers in Macedonia should remain under the domination of Turkey. They also realize that they cannot long sustain the burden of the army on its present footing. For the king also a successful war would mean the consolidation of the position of a dynasty imposed upon the Bulgarian people by the powers. For both the king and the people, therefore, it appeared to be "now or never."

The moment, however, was singularly unpropitious because Europe today unanimously supports the regime of the Young Turks at Constantinople and desires to give it a fair chance to regenerate Turkey.

The last hope of King Ferdinand and the Bulgarian government disappeared when the king recently visited St. Petersburg and found that Russia refused to give either sympathy or support to an appeal to arms at this time. Bulgaria has yielded but, as understood here, only to see what diplomacy can do.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

A LINIMENT FOR EXTERNAL USE.

One of the most valuable qualities of Mother's Friend is that it safe-guards the future health of the mother. It is a liniment to be applied externally to the body, the use of which lubricates the muscles and tendons, softens the glands and ducts, prevents lumps forming in the breasts, and relieves the pain, soreness, nausea, and other troubles from which so many expectant mothers suffer. When Mother's Friend is used regularly it fits and prepares the system for an easy and natural consummation of the term. Women who engage with this great liniment are always saved much suffering when baby comes, and recover more quickly, and without ill effects. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. AN OBJECT LESSON.

MOST of the people in Colorado Springs have had enough disagreeable experiences with dust storms to convince them of the need of street paving, but for the benefit of the doubters it is probably a good thing that we have an occasional heavy blow like the one last Saturday. No community is so fortunate as to escape all of the unpleasant things associated with the vagaries of the weather, and while Colorado Springs is luckier than almost any other city in possessing an ideal climate, it is nevertheless subject to periodical visitations of wind and dust not merely disagreeable but costly.

It is possible to escape mud by staying indoors in wet weather or by picking your way carefully across the street, but when the dust blows it blows everywhere. There is no getting away from it, indoors or out. It finds its way through the crevices of the closest fitting doors and windows; it injures furniture and furnishings and causes the housewife more extra work in a half hour than she can get done in a day. If it were possible to find out the actual damage to merchandise caused by the dust storms it would be shown that the business men of Colorado Springs suffer losses of many thousands of dollars annually.

DUST AND THE TOURISTS.

Another important aspect of the dust question is its effect on visitors. First impressions are always lasting, and when a tourist arrives in Colorado Springs in the midst of a heavy atmosphere which compels him to remain indoors he is liable to be too disgusted to listen to explanations or excuses. Every hotel manager in the city can tell of dozens of cases of visitors cutting their stay short for this reason. The damage to the city is not limited to the loss of their patronage, for each of them is forevermore ready to tell his friends of his terrible experiences here whenever Colorado Springs is mentioned.

There is only one remedy for the dust nuisance that can be counted on as even partially effective and that is paving. Heavy clouds of dust do not travel far, as a general thing, but are blown up from the surface of the ground within a few hundred feet of the point where one encounters them. This is particularly true of Colorado Springs dust, which, being mostly sand, is too heavy to be borne long distances by the wind. Therefore when the streets in a given area are paved there is certain to be a pronounced diminution in the amount of dust encountered there.

The plan to pave the business district is so generally favored that the requisite number of signatures to the petition probably will be obtained. If possible the work should be finished before the next tourist season, and when it is done Colorado Springs will have the most important public improvement since the building of its water system.

A BENEFIT TO THE STATE.

ONE of the most important steps ever taken in the state for the benefit of its metal mines is the establishment of a new experimental department at the State School of Mines for the use of Colorado ores in determining the best method for the treatment of any given class or specimen of ore. President Alderson of the School has tried to secure funds for such a department for the last three years and the letting of contracts for the building is [illegible] the final success of his efforts.

As the high grade ore bodies of Colorado mining camps approach exhaustion the importance of cheaper treatment methods grows, and the time is not distant when the continued existence of more than one camp that in earlier days yielded bonanza ores will depend on the perfection of milling processes which will permit profitable handling of the very lowest grades of ore. And the older the camp, the more this will mean, for in the pioneer days of Colorado mining ore running sometimes as high as $40 a ton was thrown on the dumps, while immense bodies of ore which with present cheap treatment methods could yield large profits were left untouched.

What can be accomplished in this direction is best illustrated in the Cripple Creek District where [illegible] are [illegible] by [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] are already being used in the treatment of large quantities of both low grade mine [illegible] and [illegible] are treating [illegible] large quantities of low grade ore at profit and the time is close at hand when the local milling industry in Cripple Creek will play a large part in [illegible] the camp's gold production.

But prospectors and operators of small mines can not afford to go to the expense of establishing such [illegible] for their own [illegible] and what is [illegible] the [illegible] of the several [illegible] in the state [illegible] the aid in this direction

The plant now building at Golden, which will be supplied by Ute Creek, will give miners in general a chance to assert—in at practically no cost the methods of treatment that will yield the largest percentage of saving from the various types of ore they open up, and as the same time important contributions to the general knowledge of milling methods may be expected to result from these tests.

An additional dollar per ton saving in the transportation and treatment of ore may mean the making of a mine, and there is no doubt that in many instances a much larger saving over present treatment costs would be effected by the application of methods shown by experiment to be best adapted to the particular classes of ore to be treated while the saving in transportation costs possible through erection of plants close to the mines is often still greater. In fact, when it becomes necessary to mine on an exceedingly close margin of profit, the reduction of a few cents a ton in milling expenses will be important, but it is not necessary to look farther than the present to find an important mission for the new institution. Its opening will mark the formal beginning of a new epoch in the metalliferous mining industry of the state.

Colonel Roosevelt rode a camel across the desert last week. In view of the Colonel's well known strenuousity it is needless to say that the animal had a hump on.

Between Colonel Roosevelt's return and Mount Etna's eruption tourists are having a great time across the water these days. Persons without means to travel may find consolation in the fact that Halley's comet will be visible from the back yard.

Rumors are rife in Washington that the tariff question is to be reopened. It has never been closed.

Senator La Follette says the victory of the insurgents in the House was hollow. Perhaps that is why it made such a loud noise.

AUTOS IN THE CANON.

To the Editor of The Gazette.

In regard to automobiles going up in the North canon I should say, no, most emphatically. Let there be one place where those who have not the auto bee in their bonnet, can go and rest and enjoy nature without the eternal chug, chug, and explosions of the auto—there is not the least doubt in my mind but fully 50 per cent of all autoists are mentally unbalanced and it would be impossible for them to see where they could possibly disturb anyone by going up in the canon—parties of children on burros would be in danger—the road is too narrow to pass easily, etc.

A STREAK OF LUCK.

From the Forest (Ohio) Advertiser.

Pallie Alts, hardware merchant, fell on the icy sidewalk in front of A. N. Nick's grocery Saturday afternoon and broke his leg. He was assisted into R. A. Liles' shoe store and Cote Picket adjusted the broken member by use of glue and straps. Mr. Alts said it was the first time anything of that kind ever happened to him. It was surely a streak of luck that it was not his other limb.

SERIOUS STREET CAR BOYCOTT.

From the Red Bank (N. J.) Standard.

Charles Dangler, a carpenter living in West Red Bank, went to New York last Saturday for the first time in a long while. His business took him to Sixty-ninth street, and he was so pleased with the sights that he walked from the ferry to Sixty-ninth street and back. He says he anticipates a trip to Philadelphia and having read of the car strike in that city he thought he would accustom himself to hoofing it.

THE SPEAKER'S POWER.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Speaker Cannon, or the hitherto dominant Republican majority, has no doubt carried this theory to excess, but the rules of the House have been a very gradual evolution under the pressure of experience, and even the much-discussed committee of rules is not a recent creation. It is entirely competent for the House to change the composition or the powers of this committee. The object of the present change is to remove it from the power of the speaker and make it more largely representative of the general membership. The purpose is proper, though the form seems calculated to diffuse the authority of the House in an unpractical degree.

THE SHAH'S HIGHWAY.

From Harper's Weekly.

It is true we have some bad roads, but most of our highways compared with those of Persia would be as a paved street to a plowed field.

You would think that the keeping of the shah's highway would be one of the first cares of a state, yet so little attention has been given to this subject by the Persian government that there are not a dozen good wagon roads throughout the whole country.

The caravan routes are, except in a very few cases, merely trails. Not only are the wagon roads bad as well as scarce, but it is an astonishing fact that although Persia is one of the oldest of civilized states, a country comprising an area of 628,000 square miles and a population of 9,000,000, it has but six miles of railway.

CONFESSING JOYS OF CHILDHOOD.

From the New York Press.

A Paris paper recently has been canvassing many prominent men and women in France for an answer to the question, "As a child what was your first joy?" and the answers that have been published are full of interest. Edmond Rostand, author of "Chanticler," the play the forthcoming production of which is causing a stir in Paris, frankly confesses that his first joy was caused by a stick of sugar candy but Mme. Jane Harding touches a more sentimental note. "In Provence, where I was born," she says, "it was the custom to have a crib in every house at Christmas time. For forty days before the festival it was lit by an oil lamp, and morning and evening I used to kneel and say my prayers before it. That little light was [illegible] of my childhood, and it was the first and perhaps the greatest of my joys."

Says Mme. Bernhardt: "When I was at school a patch of garden in the playground was given to me to share with another little girl. My first great joy came when I bought out her part of our joint garden with sweet pins, two reams of ruled paper and my lizard box, containing three lizards, one of them without a tail. I was then sole queen of my garden." Mme. Rejane was a purely feminine joy. "I never shall forget the day my mother first consented to take me to a fancy dress dance. I wore an Andalusian costume, the very one that I had always set my heart upon, and as I walked down the boulevards I heard the passers-by say to one another, in tones of unmistakable admiration, 'Look at the little Andalusian.' That day, for the first time, I knew joy—real joy, in every sense of the word."

ANNIHILATING DISTANCE.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.

The craze for record-making was given a decided fillip yesterday at Daytona, Fla., when Barney Oldfield covered a mile in 27 33-100 seconds, a speed equivalent to 131.78 miles an hour. The fastest record by a locomotive is five miles in 2 minutes and 30 seconds, or, say, 30 seconds for a mile. The enthusiastic reporter would therefore seem justified in saying that Oldfield has outstripped anything propelled by man except a bullet. His assertion that the terrific speed taxed the mechanism of the eye and almost equaled thought is something more than a flight of imagery.

No doubt there is yet room for acceleration in the speed of ordinary travel provided it can be attained with commensurate precautions for safety, but the popular demand in regard to automobiles on the highways is for less rather than greater speed. Oldfield's exhibition shows what may be reached under certain favorable conditions without encouraging desire or hope that any transportation agency will immediately endeavor to emulate it. Popularly it will be welcomed chiefly as another American world's record.

The Daily Chit-Chat

The girl with the coronet braid and the girl with the tailored shirtwaist were discussing the man who belonged—or rather wanted to belong—to the girl with the coronet braid.

"I don't like him, Jane," said the tailored shirtwaist. "He looks down on women too much. He says they are absolutely inferior mentally and physically and not much good morally."

"I know," defended Jane of the coronet braid. "He tells me that, too, but says I'm different. And what do I care what he thinks of other women?" Foolish Jane. She ought to care.

She ought to realize that the safest foundation for a man's love for one woman is his reverence for the sex.

For the man who thinks most women are not to be trusted but that you are an exception that most women are fools but that you are surprisingly intelligent, is pretty apt to forget that one little word "but" some fine day.

Don't be content, either, with a man whose manners towards you are perfect but who is careless with other women.

Try the experiment of taking one of your girl friends to the theater or on some excursion with you some time, and instead of being jealous if he is solicitous for her comfort as well as yours and remembers to do all the little things for her as well as for you, thank your lucky stars.

For that means that his considerateness and his solicitude for your comfort are not just put on for the wooing, but his natural attitude towards woman and therefore likely when the wooing is over, will still endure.

* * *

"Yes, I always eat cream of wheat."

"I like the regular old-fashioned oatmeal."

"I just hate cereals. I always have half a grapefruit and then my eggs."

Which is simply a chronicle of one of those absurd conversations into which the most intelligent and interesting people occasionally drift—conversations wherein each one tells what his table tastes are, and nobody listens to what anyone else is saying.

Why on earth should anyone listen? Why on earth should anyone barring lovers, perhaps, and members of one's family—be interested in anyone else's table preferences?

I give it up.

If you want to hear something funny, suppose the next time you are present at one of these conversations, instead of chiming in with your preferences you just sit back and listen and see if you aren't decidedly amused at the absurdity of it all.

* * *

Of course she gets good marks. She studies most of the time. Any one could get good marks by studying hard. That's nothing," I heard one college girl say of another recently.

But could any one "study most of the time?"

Has every one that ability?

Isn't the power to stick to tasks until you conquer them whatever the temptation to do otherwise quite as much a gift as the ability to do things easily?

We are apt to look down upon the man who gets things by digging and to admire the man who slips along easily because he is brilliant, but really is the gift of the brilliance to get things without digging for them any greater than the gift of the grit to dig?

Doesn't seem so to me, anyway.

Rub one-half of this thoroughly into the tongue, set aside in a cold place over night then rub in the remainder. Place in a crock, cover with strong brine and set away in a cold place for two weeks. Wash off the pickle and dry thoroughly, then roll in a paste made of flour and water and rolled out very thin. Bake in a moderate oven, basting with melted butter (or good dripping) and water. Test by piercing with a steel skewer, when tender remove the paste and skin carefully. Chill and cut in very thin slices for serving.

Pear Bavaroise. Open a pint jar of pears and press the fruit through a sieve. Heat with the syrup to the boiling point, add sugar if necessary to make quite sweet. Soak one-half box of gelatine in one-half cupful of cold water, add the scalding fruit and stir until dissolved; then set aside to cool. Add the strained juice of one lemon; when the mixture is quite thick stir in one cupful of thick cream whipped to a solid froth, and beat slowly until the mixture is quite thick, then turn into a wetted mold.

CHAPEL OPENED

The new mortuary chapel in Evergreen cemetery was formally opened yesterday. About 20 ladies of the Cemetery Aid association welcomed visitors during the day and it is estimated that between 1,200 and 1,500 persons inspected the structure in the course of the day. No exercises were held.

The chapel was built by the city at a cost of $10,000. The Cemetery Aid association furnished it with carpet, organ and other accessories. The chapel is to be used for temporary burial only, and will conveniently hold 32 coffins. It can be made to accommodate 75 coffins.

OPERA SUNG IN ENGLISH

"Americans should realize that their grand opera be sung in English. It is a ludicrous idea that music lovers of this country have that they must hear opera sung in a tongue entirely foreign to the majority of the [illegible] just because they imagine that in so doing they are expressing an unusual appreciation of art in giving us grand opera in perfection," said Mme. Antoinette Le Brun, prima donna soprano of the Le Brun Grand Opera company, which appears at the Opera House this afternoon and evening. "All the other nations," continued Mme. Le Brun, "will not attend an operatic performance unless it is sung in their native tongue. During my career in Italy I was compelled to learn all the German and French operas in Italian, and the same was the case when I appeared in Paris, two seasons ago, for the French are demanded that his opera be sung in French.

"Henry W. Savage, I believe, did more to [illegible] elevating the musical taste of this country than any other operatic manager, simply because he brought the great operas to all the principal cities of the country and gave them, not only in a most admirable and artistic manner, but also in a language that the public could understand. Consequently it could appreciate the libretto as well as the music. The main difficulty with opera in English is the translations, but there is no reason at all why satisfactory and even beautiful versions of the operas can not be made in English, for just consider the exquisite translations that Katherine Wormley has made of Balzac's works and Edith Wharton's poetic and literary versions of the German dramatists. When I began my tour I turned over the work of the translations of the scenes from 'Il Trovatore' and 'Martha' to well known writers and I believe that no one can find fault with the English into which the libretto have been translated."

Mme. Le Brun will present today for the first time on the local stage, the most important and beautiful scenes of Verdi's "Il Trovatore" and of Flotow's "Martha."

MORE THAN 1,000 MEN HEAR RIDDELL

Tells How to Realize the Higher Life "Christian Mysteries Unveiled," Tonight.

An attentive and enthusiastic audience of over 1,000 men listened to Newton N. Riddell's lecture on "The New Man and Paths to Power" yesterday afternoon in the First Methodist church. Mr. Riddell made plain, the occult teaching of how to realize the higher life, and his advice pertaining to home and civic duties was well received, the audience responding with repeated applause. The Y. M. C. A., under whose auspices the meeting was given, furnished several very pleasing instrumental selections. Secretary Hall presided. Mr. Riddell said in part:

"Honesty is a prerequisite to wisdom. Sincerity is essential to understanding. Truth becomes error to a dishonest soul. Prejudice a child of ignorance is ever the opponent of progress. A sunbeam that had traveled in a direct line for 92,000,000 miles, struck a flaw in a window pane and fell obliquely on the floor. A truth that has traveled in a straight line for centuries, coming direct from the eternal throne of God, may be deflected by prejudices in a man's mind and fall as error on his soul. Men, let us be honest! Let us be sincere! Let us lay aside our prejudice that the truth may come in!"

The Man of the Future.

He then touched upon the great problems of the twentieth century, and after summing all of them up briefly said that his conclusion is that what is needed first, worst and most of all for the solution of the great problem of our time is a new man. In commenting on this point he said: "Now, the man of the future, the knight of the twentieth century, is to be a man who shall combine in his nature the best elements of all the types revealed in history—physical strength plus noble birth, plus commercial enterprise, plus intellectual power, plus Christ. As Christ was the climax in the story of the race, so Christian character shall be the crowning glory of the knight of the twentieth century. Character within is that figure of soul peculiar to each individual resulting from the relative strength and activity of the several elements in their combined manifestation toward the world. It is the mental relation that we by nature, choice and volition sustain toward others. It is the result of inherent tendencies, force of environment, habits, thoughts and volition. It cannot be inherited, given us by another or bought at any price. It must be by volition or effort on our part."

Character Suggestions.

In conclusion, he made some valuable suggestions upon character building and what constituted the real knight of the twentieth century. At the close of his lecture, Dr. Riddell talked for a few minutes upon civic righteousness and the good the men of this city could do by lending a helping hand to the fallen, keeping watch over the erring boys and girls and pointing out to them that "the wages of sin is death." Every man in the audience was visibly affected by the lecture and it put many minds to thinking along the channel of righteousness.

Dr. Riddell's subject for tonight is "Christian Mysteries Unveiled."

Next Sunday afternoon another mass meeting is planned.

Those who went are Colonel W. A. Davis of the Second regiment, Captain F. J. Barnum, a staff officer and Captain Paul M. Lennox and First Lieutenant Hildreth, first of A company. The subject taken was map reading, and those who attended the school from various parts of the state were addressed by two officers of the regular army at Fort Logan.

HANDCUFFS NECESSARY

And Even Then Officers Have Hard Time Watching Prisoner in the Automobile.

Deputy Sheriffs Burns and Pinnock spent a strenuous Easter afternoon yesterday in arresting Casimo Rizzi, who, in a drunken condition, ran amuck in Papeton. Rizzi was reported to be flourishing a razor about the camp and to have struck a Mrs. Cimino. Burns-Pinnock went to the camp in an automobile and picked up the offender. They were obliged to handcuff him in order to get him into the car, and then had all they could do to keep him there until they reached town which was about 6 o'clock last night.

The prisoner was locked up in the county jail, charged with assault and disturbance. He was arrested once before for creating a similar disturbance.

The escapement and carriage movements are ball bearing — the type-bar and the key action in absolutely perfect balance.

This gives a lightness of touch and a smoothness of action not to be found in any other typewriter on the market.

That is why most stenographers choose the Underwood. They know that work can be done quicker, easier and more accurately.

You are interested in a substantial saving of time together with a marked improvement in the character of your work—let us show you a few of the exclusive features of
